A new resort might soon surround Midway's hot springs, an area making-up 85 acres east of Homestead Drive to Pine Canyon Road and north of Kari Lane to Warm Springs Drive.

LaRoy Orr and David Socwell, developers of a project called Wasatch Mountain Hot Springs Resort, presented a concept plan to the Midway City Planning Commission Thursday night.

The plan calls for 59 single family homes, 103 condominiums, a 60-unit hotel, a bed and breakfast, restaurant and retail shop.

Planners felt the proposal had too many units and asked the developers to scale down the project.

that has already cost the nearly $200,000 in legal fees.

This lawsuit could have been avoided had Wasatch County required the developer to meet slope stabilization standards before the subdivision was approved. Wasatch County seems to have been approving subdivisions without requiring engineering standards on the

Just Stuff

It was a slumber party. I know, I know, it was a slumber party, but, that's what it was—a slumber party with my girl friends. And, like most slumber parties, there was a lot of talking, a lot of munching and

I hosted the party a few weeks ago at a cabin in Timber Lakes up above Heber. My sister's home in Heber, then we'd call it a cabin. Everyone was a little nervous about it and Eubank was wearing his white shirt. "We shouldn't have any problems."

By the time we all gathered at Sue's house, we decided to be safe and take only the four wheel drives. We loaded up our stuff in a four wheel drive pickup. Finally, and, although Kraig and my boys had been there all night, they agreed to chauffeur the other
